INTRODUCTORY NOTES

Since independence in 1960, Nigeria has had two indigenous copyright legislations: The Copyright Decree of 1970; and the Copyright Decree 47 of 1988, (later codified as Copyright Act, Chapter C28, Laws of the Federation of Nigeria, 2004 - following amendments in 1992 and 1999). The latter is the current operating legislation.

After the promulgation of the Copyright Decree of 1988, Nigeria has not had a holistic review of its policy and legal framework for copyright protection. Nevertheless, there have been many significant developments both in the international and domestic copyright community. The paradigm shift in global trade which became more driven by knowledge based products made it imperative to incorporate protection of intellectual property rights in World Trade Organization instrument negotiated within the Uruguay Rounds of talks in 1994. Consequently, the Agreement on the Trade Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS) became part of the WTO instruments. Countries within the WTO system were accordingly mandated to grant certain defined standards of protection to intellectual property rights. TRIPS Agreement requires member states, among others, to comply with the Paris text of the Berne Convention, which Convention adds some further obligations in the field of copyright.

Similarly, the emergence of digital technologies revolutionized the creative economy as production and dissemination of creative works became more accessible and lent themselves to global exploitation beyond national boundaries. The global intellectual property community has responded to these challenges by the adoption of a number of unique solutions, including international treaties like the WIPO Copyright Treaty and WIPO Performances and Phonograms Treaty of 1996; the WIPO Beijing Treaty for Protection of Audiovisual Performances of 2012; and the Marrakesh Treaty for the Blind and Visually Impaired Persons of 2013.

Taking cognizance of these developments, the Nigerian Copyright Commission, in November 2012, formally launched the Reform of the Copyright System. The key objective of the reform was to reposition Nigeria's creative industries for greater growth; strengthen their capacity to compete more effectively in the global marketplace, and also enable Nigeria to fully satisfy its obligations under the various International Copyright Instruments, which it has either ratified or indicated interest to ratify.

Since the formal launch of the Reform, the Commission, through the Reform Expert Working Group, has undertaken a number of activities, including review and comparative analysis and case studies of similar national reform efforts; stakeholders' consultations; collation of commentaries; and analysis of stakeholder feed backs. Following from these preliminary activities, the Commission empanelled a seven member Technical Working Group consisting of Officials of the Commission and representatives of relevant intellectual property professional bodies to undertake the task of producing a draft Copyright Bill. The Group worked through retreat sessions and meetings, at the end of which it submitted a draft Copyright Bill to the Commission.

Policy Considerations

The preparation of the draft Copyright Bill was guided by an underlying policy objective, inter alia;

- i. To strengthen the copyright regime in Nigeria to enhance the competitiveness of its creative industries in a digital and knowledge-based global economy.
- ii. To effectively protect the rights of authors to ensure just rewards and recognition for their intellectual efforts while also providing appropriate limitations and exceptions to guarantee access to creative works, encourage cultural interchange and advance public welfare.
- iii. To facilitate Nigeria's compliance with obligations arising from relevant international copyright treaties; and
- iv. To enhance the capacity of the Nigerian Copyright Commission for effective administration and enforcement of the provisions of the Copyright Act.

The draft Copyright Bill also takes into account the basic objective of the reform initiative, as well as the identified concerns of Nigeria's copyright community expressed either through written submissions, or interventions during the elaborate stakeholders' consultations between 2012 and 2013.

Highlights of the Draft Copyright Bill

- (a) the person wishing to undertake the said activity has lawful access to that work or subject matter, or a copy of that work or subject matter;

- (c) such accessible format copies are supplied exclusively to be used by beneficiary persons; and
- (d) the activity is undertaken on a non-profit basis;

(2) A beneficiary person, or someone acting on his or her behalf including a primary caretaker or caregiver, may make an accessible format copy of a work or other subject matter for the personal use of the beneficiary person or otherwise may assist the beneficiary person to make and use accessible format copies where the beneficiary person has lawful access to that work or a copy of that work. regardless of any other disabilities.

Special exceptions in respect of a sound recording of a musical work

23(1) The copyright in a musical work is not infringed by a person (in this section referred to as “the record producer”) who makes a recording of the work or of an adaptation thereof in Nigeria, if –

(3) Where a record comprises, with or without other material, a performance of a musical work, or of an adaptation of musical work, in which words are sung, or are spoken incidentally to or in association with the music, and either no copyright subsists in that work or, if such copyright subsists, the conditions specified in subsection (1) of this section are fulfilled in relation to that copyright, then if –

(a) the works consist or form part of a literary or dramatic work in which copyright subsists; and

(b) such previous records as are referred to in paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of this section were made or imported by, or with the licence of the owner of the copyright in that literary or dramatic work; and

- (c) the conditions specified in paragraphs (b) and (d) of subsection (1) of this section are fulfilled in relation to the owner of that copyright;

the making of the record shall not constitute an infringement of the copyright in the literary or dramatic work:

Provided that this paragraph shall not be construed as requiring more than one royalty to be paid in respect of a record; and if copyright subsists both in the musical work and in the literary or dramatic work, and their owners are different persons, the royalty shall be apportioned among them, or among them and any other person entitled to a share thereof as they may agree or as, in default of agreement, may be determined by the Commission.

(4) For the purpose of this section, an adaptation of a work shall be taken to be similar to an adaptation thereof contained in previous records if the two adaptations are similar in that they do not differ substantially in their treatment of the work, in respect of style or, apart from a difference in number, in respect of the performers required to perform the adaptations.

(5) The Commission shall have power to make regulations providing for conditions necessary to give effect to the purposes of this section.
